Severance tax major issue of campaign — McAlpine

By JAKE METCALFE

About 75 students, faculty and administrators listened last Friday to Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor Steve McAlpine tell them that "the single most important issue facing our state has rarely been discussed in this fall's campaign."

The issue McAlpine said is being overlooked is whether or not the state will be able to keep taxing the extraction of its natural resources.

McAlpine cited a recent court case involving the state of Montana in which the Supreme Court ruled Congress has the right to limit or eliminate state severance taxes on natural resources.

McAlpine, 33, claimed that Alaska could suffer the same consequences if it continued to destroy its image through wasteful programs such as the Permanent Fund Dividend Distribution Plan set into effect by Gov. Jay Hammond.

"He (Hammond) spend $400 million destroying our image" by doling out $1,000 to each man, woman and child in Alaska, McAlpine said.

Student housing top priority

By JENNIFER MORTELL

Dr. W. Russell Jones, UAJ executive vice chancellor in charge of planning and development, says student housing on campus remains the top priority of the next fiscal year.

"Student housing is of the main importance," Jones said in an interview. "Other top projects include an addition to the Marine Technology Center in FY 84."

Jones said the Marine Tech Center addition will be 29,000 square-feet and will be connected to Juneau-Douglas High School by an overpass. The overpass will allow high school students to use the facility.

Woodworking, carpentry, drafting and mechanics will be some of the courses taught in the new building, located between Harris Harbor and Aurora Basin.

Jones said building programs at the university should continue no matter what happens in relation to the capital move. He said UAJ should still get funding for student housing. The cost is estimated at $13.2 million.

We've got movies!

On selected Saturday nights this semester, free movies will be shown at 7 p.m. in Room 205 in the Hendrickson Building.

Shorts and cartoons will accompany the following films:

Oct. 30: "Casino Royale." 1967. British. John Huston, Ken Hughes, Robert Parrish.

Nov. 18: "Creature From the Black Lagoon." 1954, in 3-D. Jack Arnold, Richard Carlson, Julia Adams.

Dec. 4: "Jeremiah Johnson." 1972. Sydney Pollack, Robert Redford, Will Geer.

Friday night movies, which are free to all UAJ students, co-sponsored with the New Juneau Film Society will be held at the Bill Ray Center starting at 8 p.m. They include:

Nov. 12: "Badlands." 1973. Sissy Spacek's first film is based on the true story of a young couple's killing spree across the Dakotas in the 1950s.

Dec. 10: "Chloe in the Afternoon." 1972. This French film is a character study of a middle-aged married man's increasing fixation with Chloe.

Counselor's Corner

Now that the rush of registration is over, we can settle down and take stock. Registration was at an all-time high, souls, so if we seemed harried and brusque, bear with us.

There have been some changes in the Counseling Center. Howard Lindskoog retired the end of June. He and his wife, Marie, are taking a leisurely tour across Alaska, Canada and the Lower 48. Ah sweet sunshine!

Lindskoog was replaced by Jan Merrill who came on board Sept. 8. She hales from Northern California, the College of the Siskiyous, outside of Wee. In addition to personal counseling and testing, she will act as academic advisor to those students enrolled in the new general AA program.

We also have a new secretary/receptionist, Sue Sewill. She keeps tabs on us and will assist you with the job vacancy board, hand out financial aid forms, make appointments and other general duties. She graduated from Juneau-Douglas High School and worked for the school district for a number of years.

We have new hours. There will be a counselor available until 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday. For the convenience of the downtown students, there is a counselor at the Bill Ray Center Monday through Thursday also. Call 789-4457 for the exact times.

FINANCIAL AID

Students who will need financial aid for spring semester should apply now if they haven't already done so. It can take up to six weeks to establish eligibility in some programs.

The state loan program expects to run out of loan funds shortly, so students should apply particularly early for that particular loan program. See Chuck Fields in the Whitehead Building. He is also at the Bill Ray Center from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. every Monday.

STATE RETIREMENT

Anyone interested in having a state retirement representative on campus to discuss TRS or PERS questions, let the Office of Human Resource Development know at ext. 506.

STAFF PERFORMANCE

The long-awaited Staff Performance Appraisal System will be presented in a series of workshops slated to be held during November and December on the UAJ campus.

Workshops are planned for both staff who are to be evaluated and for supervisors who will be doing the evaluation.

On-going workshops will be held during the year by the UAJ Office of Human Resource Development once the new system is in place. Beginning Jan. 1, all staff performance appraisals will be conducted using the new evaluation process.

Since 1979 the new evaluation tool and procedures have had broad input via employee forums, a Statewide Assembly sub-committee on salary and merit, the statewide Office of Human Resource Development and the regional personnel directors.

A final draft of the Employee Handbook has been sent to the printers, and the Supervisor's Supplement is in the final draft stage. These books will be helpful in understanding the purpose and value of a good performance appraisal system.

KOESTER PRESENTS PAPER

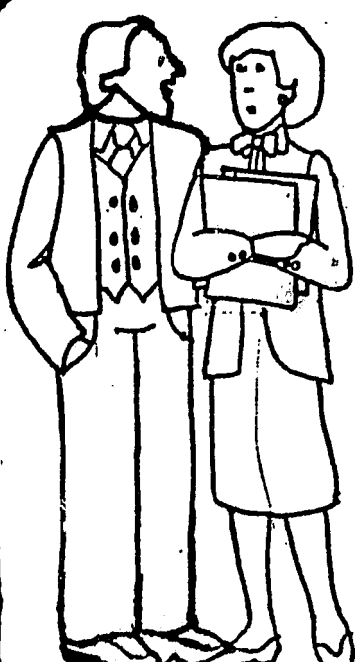

Sue Koester, assistant professor of speech, recently presented a paper at the Northwest Women's Studies Association conference in Missoula, Montana.

Koester's paper was titled "A Case Study of Women's Energy at Work: The Voice of the National Women's Political Caucus at the 1972 Democratic Convention."

Koester was in Missoula from Oct. 8-11. She was invited by sponsors of the conference to present the paper.

Koester has been a full-time professor at UAJ for two years. She received both her bachelor's and master's at San Diego State University.

Special Report

By MICHAEL MULNIX

Earlier this year the chancellor outlined an administrative structure which included a Planning Team. One of the prime responsibilities of this team is to develop a master plan for UAJ.

The master plan will eventually consist of an overall academic plan, campus plan, and budget/financial plan. When completed, this comprehensive document will become part of the statewide master plan for use in defining the goals and objectives of UA in future years.

In order to more effectively research and develop program proposals and/or solutions to specific problems for consideration by the full Planning Team, various subcommittees have been appointed to help expedite work on the master plan.

The membership on these subcommittees has been kept small so they can be more effective as working bodies. However, the chairpersons of each subcommittee have expressed a willingness to allow anyone in the UAJ community to attend these meetings in an effort to get a well-rounded master plan.

There are four subcommittees working on the master plan. They include:

The Academic Master Plan Subcommittee which will develop both short- and long-range academic plans for UAJ. The subcommittee is to develop a proposal of what UAJ's academic programs should look like in 1990 and design the yearly goals through which this can be achieved.

The Campus Master Plan Subcommittee is to develop a campus building and facility master plan including recommendations for land acquisition. This plan shall include a proposed yearly sequence of buildings, land and facility development needed through the year 1990.

The Budget and Finance Subcommittee will develop yearly budgets and long-range financial plans necessary to implement UAJ's academic and master plans.

Finally, the Space Utilization, Renovation and Remodeling Subcommittee (SPURR) will develop and maintain a space utilization plan to meet the academic, service and support needs of UAJ. The subcommittee will review all requests for reallocation of space, renovation and/or remodeling and will make recommendations to the Planning Team.

All of the efforts of the Planning Team are ultimately directed toward solving UAJ's accreditation deficiencies and maintaining a healthy and viable institution in the year's ahead.

Comment

BY MARY R. LISZAK

Six women faculty members at Western Oregon State College were awarded $244,000 in back pay and damages, after a ruling they were victims of intentional sex bias. A federal district court judge ruled the college purposely paid the women less than male faculty with similar duties. The judge rejected the college's contention that the men's jobs were more demanding, in all but one case, and back pay was awarded to the women under the Equal Pay Act. The Equal Pay Act of 1963 prohibits unjustified pay differentials for men and women performing similar work.

Attorneys for the 3,100 student-public institution are preparing an appeal. The college's Interim President James Beard claims the judge overlooked evidence of non-biased salary differences. Beard stated the women faculty erred by comparing their activities of teaching with a man who performed substantial coaching, and other women compared teaching with those performing research.

The judge rejected the claim stating the primary duty of all P.E. faculty at WOSC was teaching. The college argued the man was paid more because the school wanted a highly visible and competitive coach. The judge said no evidence existed to show basketball coaches were difficult to recruit and thus required higher salaries, or that the coach hired actually possessed outstanding abilities. In addition, the females had doctorates while the male did not.

Judge Frye backed up the ruling of willful discrimination with salary surveys showing women faculty at WOSC were paid less than their male counterparts, and claimed campus administrators knew of the disparity but failed to correct it. Judge

Frye is also hearing a larger sex bias suit lodged against the entire Oregon higher education system claiming women have been discriminated against in pay, promotion and tenure.

the Campus Beat

UP IT GOES -- Work on the Mourant Building, located next to the library on the Auke Lake Campus, is progressing well and should be completed sometime in February, according to UA Regional Architect Jack Wolever.

Hard-hat area

Campus construction - progress

By DIANNE SCHMITT

Do you feel like you are going to school in a hard-hat area? Do you vie with backhoes and tractors for parking places at the Auke Bay Campus? Does your car sink into pot holes up to the windshield when you drive to the library? Have you played "chicken" with the dump trucks? Has the sound of drilling, hammering and bulldozing distracted you from your studies?

There is one word which will sum up all of these annoyances: Progress.

It is impossible to progress without disruption, but the UAJ Planning and Construction Office and the Physical Plant are keeping the disorder to a minimum.

Bob Green, director of the physical plant, said a variety of new projects are now being worked on around the campus.

"We are putting in a new utility corridor. Without it we could not construct any new buildings or add to the existing structures, unless we planned to light them with candles and eliminate additional telephone service. Our main campus cannot expand without this utility corridor," he said.

Green said the corridor will serve the new Mourant Building and other construction projects planned in the future. In addition, a new waterline and pump have been added.

The Mourant Building will be an exciting new addition to the Auke Lake Campus, housing the first "real" food service facility at UAJ. The food service facility, student government offices, lounge and bookstore will occupy the second floor.

"I'm very excited about the new bookstore area," said Ginny Hayes, bookstore director. "We will have an additional 500 square feet and need the space to display all the non-book items that a bookstore should sell."

The first floor will contain the administrative offices which are presently located in the Auke Bay Commercial Building.

When will the migration to the new building begin?

"I estimate the Mourant Building will be ready for occupancy in February," according to Jack Wolever, UA regional architect. "Of course, we never know what kind of surprise delays could occur between now and then. If all goes as planned, we will move in around the end of February."

UAJ instructors sing and dance in Juneau

By JENNIFER MORTELL

The UAJ drama and music department is gearing up for an extremely busy season, according to Dr. John d'Armand, associate professor of music and voice instruction.

Several UAJ instructors will be involved in plays and musicals in the upcoming months, he said. The first will be the musical "Little Red Riding Hood." This is a contemporary musical to be held in the Juneau-Douglas High School Auditorium Oct. 29 at 8 p.m. and Oct. 30 at 2 p.m.

D'Armand will sing the lead in the production.

Gretchen d'Armand, a voice instructor at UAJ, has been named music director for the upcoming musical "Mother Courage" to be staged at Perseverance Theatre in Douglas.

"Mother Courage" will begin its run Nov. 11.

The world premiere of "Beauty and the Beast" will be held in the Juneau-Douglas High School Auditorium Dec. 11 at 8:15 p.m. and Dec. 12 at 2:15 p.m. Carol Sams of Seattle is the composer of "Beauty and the Beast" which will star well-known basso Leon Lishner who also teaches part-time at UAJ. Elizabeth Hendricks will star as "Beauty."

In December, the University Singers, directed by San Soboleff, will appear in a number of concerts to celebrate the holidays.

For more information on any of these productions, call the School of Education and Liberal Arts at 789-4406.

Parks and Rec offers hikes

BY PAMELA FINNEY

Are your eyes fuzzy from trying to decipher last week's notes? Tired of cramming for exams? Does your hand seize up on you from writer's cramp?

Do something different this Saturday! Step outside and banish the cobwebs from your system! Join Juneau Parks and Recreation trail leader Becky Germain for a discovery hike on one of Juneau's over 30 maintained hiking trails. Wow! Are there that many? Yes, and it takes all year to really see them because soon you can cross-country ski nearly half of them.

Each Saturday until autumn winds blow the winter snows to Juneau, Becky will lead you on some interesting hikes offering history and lore for each trail. The hikes take place regardless of weather so dress warm, bring your rain gear, extra socks, a lunch for energy, and a thermos of something good and hot.

Your hike leaves the designated trailhead at 10:00 a.m. and you'll be back by 4:30 p.m. unless a different time is noted on the schedule. Don't say you need a car to go because carpooling is encouraged. The carpool leaves Cope Park downtown at 9:30 a.m.

So come enjoy Parks and Recreation's Saturday hikes. You may find out why Juneau was settled, what kinds of waterfowl you have been seeing on their way south, which trees give us some actual autumn color and where to wax up and glide with your cross-country skis when Juneau turns winter white.

For more information about each hike, you can call Juneau Parks and Recreation at 586-3300, extension 226. You can pick up a Juneau Trail Guide at the Forest Service Information Center downtown in

Demmert has new ideas for center

By MARIA CREIGHTON

Southeast-born Bill Demmert is the new director of the newly-created Center for Teacher Education at UAJ.

Demmert, who was born in Klawock and educated at Harvard, said the new center will continue to offer most of the existing teacher training programs offered at the university in the past, including pre-service and post-service coursework. Bachelor's and master's degree requirements will remain basically the same as well as the program in school administration.

Making a start is probably the most important step toward saving.

There is a way to take the initial step and know you're on the right track toward a regular, scheduled savings. Just join the Payroll Savings Plan at work. A little is taken out of each paycheck toward the purchase of U.S. Savings Bonds. You don't have to worry about making a special effort to put something aside each payday. It's all done for you. Automatically.

The bucks start piling up, the interest grows, and you realize you've found one surefire way to save.

"Alaskans are going to have to understand that we are going to have to begin using our resource wealth wisely," McAlpine said. Instead of wasting money on give-away programs such as the dividend program, McAlpine suggested the state use its wealth to improve transportation systems, housing, and health care.

To make those improvements, the state must stop being "so grossly disunited," McAlpine said. He said no improvements in the state can be made until residents living in different segments settle divisive issues.

The capital move is one issue that is not only disuniting the state, but also is giving Alaska a bad reputation in the Lower 48, he said. He said although he voted in favor of moving the capital in 1974, he since has changed his mind because the issue is so dividing the state.

McAlpine also said an "investment in education is the single-most important one made for the future." He said his running-mate, Democratic gubernatorial candidate Bill Sheffield, support improvement to the University of Alaska statewide system. He said vocational and technical education should be more readily available and that the state Student Loan Program should be continued.

McAlpine said one of the problems with having students go Outside for an education is that they often never return to Alaska. By increasing the educational opportunities available to the Alaska student, this problem could be resolved, he said.

McAlpine made clear his stand on six initiative propositions that will appear on the Nov. 2 ballot. They are:

Abortion: Although he is personally against abortion, McAlpine said he does not want to see state funding of abortions eliminated because it would discriminate against the poor.

Subsistence: McAlpine does not favor the repeal of the subsistence law, saying he fears the federal government will take control of hunting and fishing rights in federally-controlled areas.

Capital Move: He is opposed to the move because of the cost and the division it would create in the state.

Spending Limitation: McAlpine is against the limitation because he believes it is a poorly written law. He said a better law could be written.

Constitutional Convention: He said he is opposed to the convention because the present constitution is a good one and he fears the impact special-interest groups would have on the creation of a new one.

Tundra Rebellion: He opposes the so-called Tundra Rebellion because it would only create more problems with Alaska as related to the federal government.

McAlpine said he and Sheffield's opponent in the general election, Tom Fink, supports all the above-listed initiatives and is hoping to pick up the support of the single-issue voter.

Sports

By L. LURIA

Sports fans, if you like skiing -- either downhill or cross country -- riflery, or cross-country running, you now have an opportunity to participate through UAJ's intercollegiate athletic program.

These four sports are only the first to be included in the new sports department at UAJ, according to Jim Dumont, director of student activities and athletics.

Dumont said he is now interviewing for a full-time head ski coach and also for a part-time coach to get his running and skiing programs organized. Dumont said several students have already registered. Meets are now being planned with other Alaska universities.

Dumont said application has been made with the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) for the programs. Funding for UAJ's athletics was received this year and pegged at $210,000.

Long-range plans for athletics at UAJ include a physical education building on the Auke Bay Campus, Dumont said. The master plan includes a 55,000 square-foot multi-purpose indoor facility located next to the Maurant Building on campus.

Dumont said he is also working to develop an athletic scholarship program to allow student athletes to get a break on their tuition.

Dumont has been working with UAJ for less than a year. Prior to that, he was director of Juneau Parks and Recreation for two years and assistant director for five years.

Anyone having an interest in athletics at UAJ should contact Dumont at 789-4529 or drop by the Administration Building.

Employment Outlook

By JEROME MAYFIELD

Some skills are more equal than others. I encourage you to identify your most powerful talents, with the assumption that every skill can find a home somewhere. While you can expect all functional and adaptive skills to have definite value, you must recognize that certain skills are universally greeted with enthusiasm by almost every employer because these skills occur with some regularity in every job having a responsibility and requiring decision-making and good judgement.

You should pay special attention to them in the work you are now doing, lock them in the non-paid activity of your spare time, and comb your past experiences for evidence of them. (Howard Figler, 1982)

1. Budget Management. Get your hot little hands on any budget you can find, no matter how small, and take responsibility for it.

2. Supervising. Take responsibility for the work of others in a situation in which some accountability is called for.

3. Public Relations. Accept a role in which you must meet or relate to the public.

4. Coping with Deadline Pressure. Search for opportunities to demonstrate you can produce good work when it is required by external deadlines. Continued on Page 11

There will be, however, no new students accepted to the guidance or special education programs which are being gradually phased out.

The center also offers outreach services to many Southeast communities, Demmert said. He said the center is working closely with the state Department of Health and Social Services, the Department of Education and the Juneau School District to review existing teacher training programs and to identify areas of need as part of a nationwide "effective schooling" drive.

Demmert further said the center concept was adopted this year in hopes of strengthening the university's education program.

The most recent tally shows UAJ having 197 primarily part-time students enrolled in the education program.

Personal Growth, Communication and Counseling

A five-day workshop with Dr. Arthur Hough

Nov. 15-19, 2 credits,
8:30 am - 4:30 pm Mon.- Fri., Bill Ray Center.
Fee: $175. Registration deadline is Nov. 1.

This workshop will help you realize new attitudes about self and about basic assumptions regarding internal and external communication, on both a personal and a professional level. Develop skills to help you see and deal with communication problems and find the best approach for the most productive results. Dr. Hough has 30 yrs teaching experience in communication, was Outstanding Educator of America, 1973, and has produced a TV series and two books on communication.

Student Activities

Message phone: If you have any information, ideas or complaints, you can leave a message at the School of Fisheries and Science Graduate Student Office, ext. 450.

Faculty evaluation: The student government is presently interested in creating a policy proposal concerning faculty evaluations to be presented to the Assembly. The questions we are concerned with are:

- How can anonymity be preserved?
- How can students be assured that evaluations are acted on by the administration?
- How can evaluations help students choose courses and instructors?
- How can we facilitate student participation?

Any suggestions or comments are welcome. Committee work: A student representative will be on each of the following university committees. If you have a point to bring before one, let us know.

Administrative Council.
Planning Team.
Athletics.

Accreditation.

Academic Master Plan Subcommittee.

Campus Master Plan Subcommittee.

Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs Search Committee.

Academic Council.

Grievance Committee.

ASSA: This is the Alaska Statewide Student Association. It is concerned with student problems common throughout the state. There will be an orientation meeting for the member schools in Anchorage Oct. 23-24. If you have a problem that you feel is statewide (loans, credit transfer etc.) let us know.

Political views: We will be discussing whether or not the USUJ ought to adopt a stand on political issues such as subsistence and the capital move.

Assembly news: The UAJ Assembly met recently and both Marshal Kendziorrek and Brock Meredith were there. Brock was elected chair of the Grievance Committee. Plans for made for the statewide Assembly meeting.

UAJ assembly elects officers

The first meeting of the 1982 fall semester UAJ Assembly was held Sept. 29.

The primary purpose of the meeting was to elect UAJA officers. Dianne McComas was elected vice president; John d'Armand was elected chair of the Academic Council; and Brock Meredith was elected chair of the Grievance Committee.

Five persons will represent UAJA in the Statewide Assembly. They are the president, vice president, student representative and two other elected representatives from the Assembly. All members agreed that the students should elect their own representative.

Katie Stewart and John d'Armand were elected as the Assembly representatives. John Lang was elected as the alternate-at-large.

Dates for the UAJA meetings for fall were set for Oct. 22 and Dec. 3.
